INVOCATION

"Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace,
Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
Where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, grant that
I may not so much seek
To be consoled, as to console;
Not so much to be understood as to understand;
Not so much to be loved as to love;
For it is in giving that we receive;
It is in pardoning that we are pardoned;
It is in dying that we awaken to eternal life".

CSI COUNCIL FOR HEALING MINISTRY

PERSPECTIVE ON OPERATIONAL POLICY

The Council reaffirms that the Ministry of Healing is as vital to the life and witness of the church together with Preaching and Teaching. It forms an important aspect of church's life. These three-fold functions under the Divine Commission are complementary. The Bible proclaims that God is the source of all life. Health is both God's will and gift to the creation. The aim of the Ministry is to help bringing about healing, health and wholeness in individuals, families, communities, and nations. The whole creation is eagerly awaiting for its fulfilment through the act of its Creator, Sustainer and Redeemer, who will bring in reconciliation between the fallen humanity, nature and Himself.

In carrying out this mission we recognise the multi-dimensional health needs of men and women - physical, mental, social, spiritual and inter-personal. Human sickness is not only individual or personal but also collective. The Bible speaks of the disease of the people in its collective, ethical and spiritual dimensions. Social, economic and political structures that exploit and alienate people and the exploitation of natural resources for selfish and destructive purposes are all symptoms of this malaise. God is the Healer of this societal sickness. Jesus's healing meant - being healed, made whole, saved and forgiven, restoring the relationship in the community and being reconciled with God, man and nature. The church is called upon to participate with God in bringing about justice, peace and integrity of creation.

The Council recognises health as a human-right and responsibility and therefore considers the global strategy, as propounded by World Health Organisation, of 'Health for All by 2000 AD' and the practice of Primary health care as a means of it, as the supreme challenge that faces the ministry today.

Church's involvement in health programmes should also be addressed to other larger issues of social and economic disparity, denial of basic necessities for the larger portion of our population, and work towards a more equitable, just and wholesome society.

The existing health care institutions of the church should be strengthened in terms of staff training and better equipment, to meet adequately the above objectives. They should be committed and more sensitive to the growing human needs, serving the poor and hapless in our society, as expressions of Christ's love, compassion and power. These institutions should enter into the needy areas of service and care that have hitherto been neglected as well as to the newly emerging health problem. They should also assume their rightful role in the organisation and management of health care services at various levels of competence within the community.

We recognise that the existing church-network of congregations and institutions is eminently suitable for engaging in primary health care. It should be our concerted endeavour initially to develop a nucleus of health workers, trained and motivated, to serve the community even in the remotest areas, enabling the community in essential promotive and preventive health care actions with its primary approach of preventing mortality and morbidity particularly among the vulnerable groups. This has to be achieved through identifying and training local leadership and promoting local initiatives. We reaffirm the importance of the role of the local congregations in this Ministry in the spirit of sharing, caring and serving and being agents of healing as part of its total mission.

As a religious agency, fully committed to the cause of health and wholeness, our aim will be to integrate our work with National health efforts and those of other voluntary agencies, giving special emphasis on the neglected and left out areas.

Through His command to heal Jesus calls His church to be a healing community bringing justice, love, harmony, reconciliation and total well-being. In this the church in every place is engaged in the mission of God in bringing about His Kingdom.

CSI COUNCIL FOR HEALING MINISTRY
Our Institutional Network
'Perspectives and Challenges'

The role of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in the field of health care services has evoked great interest in recent times among planners and administrators and the political leadership in this country, the social and welfare agencies and even among big business houses. Admittedly their perceptions vary widely which is clearly reflected in their motives and objectives and even in the style of functioning of institutions run under such dispensations. It becomes crucially important at this stage that we try to identify two distinctly different groups of agencies and organizations that are often clubbed together under the title of NGOs. These are the ones belonging to the voluntary and the private sectors. Here there is an imperative need to draw a clear distinction between the voluntary and the private sectors particularly in the context of their contribution to the health care services. The critical point of interest is that there are today scores of institutions which are run and controlled by these two sectors with the 'clearly defined objective' of making health care available to people who are in need of it.

A reference has already been made in passing that the philosophies and motives of these sectors are almost at variance. As for the voluntary sector, its principal distinguishing characteristics are its 'voluntariness' and the guiding motive force, its commitment to serve people even without recompense, if situations warrant. On the other hand, the private sector, as a rule, runs health programmes mostly as 'Patient-care through institutions' strictly on a commercial basis. There is hardly any place for charity as the management's main concern is to ensure quick and adequate returns, proportionate to the quantum of their investment. There is a growing tendency to consider health and health care more as a 'commercial proposition' with profit as the main motive. It is certainly disturbing that 'health' is being considered as a 'purchasable commodity' making it thereby unavailable to those who cannot afford to 'buy' it. The costlier, high-tech inputs and the high pressure sale propaganda that characterize these institutions have only helped to distance them from the poorer members of society.

Interestingly, the private sector has 'invaded' several other health related fields of critical importance, namely, diagnostic and investigate services, critical life saving services, and more importantly 'health training'. The tragedy is that barring a few exceptions, 'quality' is at a great premium in almost all such enterprises. All the same the fact remains that such institutions are mushrooming all round and flourishing, especially in the smaller towns exploiting the poor and the gullible, paying scant regard to the legal provisions in vogue.

Any reference to the fast-changing health care scenario in the country will not be complete without a closer look at the glaring inadequacies and imbalances in the extant state-run health system. It is sad reckoning that even today more than two-thirds of the total health care inputs - including trained health manpower and material - are earmarked for the urban minority. The much talked about rural health-care system has still not made any positive impact on the life and health of millions of the poorer rural communities especially the socially disadvantaged and the remotely placed ones.

It is against such a backdrop that one has to consider the crucial role of the voluntary sector, especially that of the Church-run/Church-related health care network engaging itself to meaningfully supplement/compliment the national health system. Their inherent strength is, they are closer to, or even one with the people, knowing fully their needs and aspirations and willing to share their woes and agonies. It may be reiterated that they are called to make a significant contribution in the context of the Healing Ministry of the Church, as living witnesses to demonstrate Christian love and compassion in action. The need for the relevance of the 'Ministry' becomes more apparent in the wake of the prevailing trend, where the health profession itself is being increasingly commercialized and dehumanized.

It may be recalled that a large majority of our institutions (hospitals and Churches) are placed in remote rural areas and as such they can play a strategic role in community organization and 'community capability building in health', under a regionalised pattern of health care services that is being planned for. The plan envisages making available to people essential health care at various levels of competence relevant and appropriate in a given setting.

We are indeed grateful to EZE for assisting the Council in the whole effort of attempting to 'rediscover' the role of the congregation in the context of the Healing Ministry. The principal focus is on 'enabling the ruling congregations to build their own capabilities in health, towards self-reliance as far as feasible. The training of 'Community Health Guides' that has now been initiated, is visualized as a vital step in this direction. The health care resources available in the Diocese as well as in the local region, namely, our rural hospitals, nurses' training schools, etc., are no more seen as exclusive entities but as 'community resources' and which have a significant contribution to make in this whole exercise of building healthier communities. Likewise, when the programme goes into operation one should be able to visualize a sea change in the overall attitude and behaviour of the local congregation. In the past, their role, if at all, was seen only as passive recipients of services, brought to them. Here they are expected to perform a totally different role as planners, enablers and providers.

What marks the major departure, is that the community resources will be mobilized and shared (both manpower and material) to make health care a reality in the lives of the poorer and the hapless among them. The modernization of facilities of our hospitals especially the rural health network *, and the active participation and involvement of the local congregation in planning and implementation of the programme at various levels has helped to bring the benefits of modern medicine closer to the hitherto neglected rural communities.

* It may be recalled that CSI has today 91 hospitals and a large number of rural clinics and health outposts engaged in the Healing Ministry of the Church (about 20 of them have been defunct, but revived, thanks to EZE for the material assistance made available to the diocese from the small Project Fund through the Council.

At long last, a beginning has been made, to translate a distant hope and a dream into a reality. We place on record our deep sense of gratitude to EZE for the valuable assistance offered to the Council to launch this programme, in the true spirit of partnership in mission.
